

CAT TRACES ANCESTRY TO MIDDLE AGES

The other day a cat fancier offered Dr. F. J. Feidler, of Seattle, $300 for Silver Dollar. Dr. Feidler turned it down. He considers Silver Dollar worth a great deal more than $300.

For Silver Dollar is a Persian cat, and the head of one of the most aristocratic houses in feline society. He traces his ancestry back to the Middle Ages.

Silver Dollar's ancestors were not only among the first of Persian cats to settle in the western world, blazing the trail for other and lesser cats to follow, but they held high stations in cat society in England. Silver Dollar's great grandmother on the maternal side was Lady Vere de Vere, and his great-grandfather on the paternal side was Lord Urgent.

And the line goes back and back to Persia, where Silver Dollar's ancestors were worshipped as sacred.

All his life Silver Dollar has been toadied to, petted and pampered. If Silver Dollar is feeling a little less than fit, a hurry call is sent for the doctor. Is Silver Dollar peeved? How, then, shall Silver Dollar be appeased?

So it is not strange that Silver

Dollar is a haughty, pompous cat.

Besides, Silver Dollar has "points." You must be a cat fancier to find them. He wins first prizes at the shows.

Culinary Conquest.

"Was your father a brave soldier?"

"I should say so. Why, two weeks after he enlisted he saved the whole company!"

"How?"

"He shot the cook."

Keep a dish of oatmeal on the toilet stand and rub it freely on the hands after each washing. This dries and softens the skin, preventing it from becoming red and rough when exposed to the air.